COUNTY TAX RATE TAKES LARGE JUMP

Increase of 32 Cents in Assessment Brings Tax Here To High Total

DISTRICT TAXES ADD $1.555
Road Fund and Detention Home
Help to Increase Assessments for 1925

An increase of 32 cents on each $100 assessed property valuation, fixing the total outside tax rate for the county at 2.30 gives Richmond residents and the county the highest tax rate in its history. The addition of Richmond city taxes as well as district taxes will bring the grand total to approximately $5.742 on each $100 assessed property valuation. The county board of supervisors in session yesterday afternoon at Martinez completed the compilation of the tax rate which is scheduled to bring the county a revenue of $1,714,781.73.

Road improvements, the general fund, salaries, and new detention home buildings form the principal items of increase in the new budget. It was held imperative that the additions be made to both the road and detention home funds in order not to lose ground already gained. Before adopting the new rate all of the members of the board worked energetically to bring it to the lowest possible figure.

Last years outside rate was fixed at $1.98. From this years rate of $2.30 the 35 cent road tax which is not paid by cities, and the county

TULE MURDER NO NEARER TO SOLUTION

A new and vigorous search for the murderer of Bessie Ferguson believed to be the victim of the tulle swamp murder of El Cerrito is being launched today under the direction of District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda county.

New developments in the case today included:

1—New fragments of the dismembered skeleton were discovered by searchers along the tide-lands of Bay Farm Island and turned over to Dr. O. D. Hamlin, Alameda county physician for "reconstruction."

2—E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, and Police Inspector J. C. MacDonald of Oakland make a hurried trip to the Alviso shooting lodge of Gordon Rowe, San Francisco business man, who was questioned in the case ten days ago.

3—Deputies Ralph Harrison and William Veale of the Contra Costa Sheriff's office visit San Francisco and consult with Detective Charles Dulles and Otto Frederickson of the homicide squad.

4—Sheriff Frank Barnett of Alameda county issues a statement detailing his movements on Tuesday night, August 18, replying to new statements by Mrs. W. T. Ferguson, Bessie's mother, linking him with Bessie.

With an almost complete reconstruction of the corpse of the victim from fragments found in both Alameda and Contra Costa county, District Attorney Warren announced that all the resources of his office, the police department and the sheriff's office would be used in the hunt for the slayer. This investigation is to be conducted independently of the Contra Costa officials according to Warren.

Contra Costa officials who are working on the case stated that they would continue the search along the same lines that had been followed during the past few days. It is generally believed by investigators that additional information not yet in the hands of the police will be necessary before any indication of the murderer will be disclosed. This information may be forthcoming in later interviews with parties already questioned or the finding of additional evidence.

Decision was reached to lay the matter over until after the first of the year, at which time the council will co-operate with the tax collector's office and find out what can be done to secure the revaluation.

Members of the council were of the opinion that the reappraisal would entail too great an expense at this time. Councilman E. J. Garrard reported that he had been advised that the cost of the work would amount to $15,000, and that it would take thirty men four months to complete it.

Mayor W. W. Scott also stated that the city could not undergo the expense of the revaluation at this time.

Walter Hansen Breaks Neck On Motorcycle In Collision

ROAD ACCIDENTS TAKE TOLL
John L. Davis Fractures Skull In Fall From Touring Car

Walter Hansen, 18 year old high school student of Concord, and John L. Davis one of the proprietors of the Flag garage near San Pablo met with tragic deaths yesterday in the upper end of the county.

Coroner Charles F. Donnelly received word of the accidents, and after making an investigation, will set a date for holding the inquests. The body of Hansen is at Concord, and that of Davis is at Martinez.

As near as the facts could be learned last evening, young Hansen was riding his motorbike yesterday morning, and was on his way to high school. In coming to an intersecting road, he crashed head on into an automobile driven by Dr. H. W. Sirewait of the Ispanio valley.

Hansen was picked up and rushed to Concord, where Dr. G. W. McKenzie was summoned but it was found that death had been instantaneous. An examination of the body showed that Hansen had his back broken. The statement was made that Hansen was speeding at the time of the accident.

While on their way home from Bay Point yesterday afternoon John L. Davis fell from a Ford touring car, suffering a fracture of the skull from which he died about 8 o'clock last evening at the county hospital at Martinez.

Davis was sitting in the front seat who was driving. In the rear seat of a Ford touring car, with D. Lopez was Marvin Gray. There was no top on the car. While the automobile was in motion Davis stood up to put on his coat, and lost his balance. The door of the machine flew open. Davis pitched to the ground striking on his head. He was taken to a first aid station near Avon, and later removed in an ambulance to the county hospital at Martinez. He lingered for several hours, finally passing away about 8 o'clock, without regaining consciousness.

UNCLE SAM CHECKS UP ON BOOTLEGGER'S INCOME

Often Uncle Sam enlists "squealers" to come to his aid, but that's just one way he has of checking up on and collecting from his new class of millionaire subjects—the bootleggers. Fred F. Sully tells all about it in this week's Liberty.

"That old adage about there being no honor among thieves is being modernized to 'There is no honesty among bootleggers', yet a notorious ex-convict the other day surprised the authorities with the statement that he was going straight and was making an honest living bootlegging! It would seem, then, that with some persons the question as to whether one can engage in an unlawful business and still be honest is entirely a matter of viewpoint," says Mr. Sully.

The bootlegger who buys his supply through a syndicate and sells to his own list of customers does not for a moment look upon himself as being dishonest. Those who make up his circle of friends undoubtedly consider him above moral reproach, lacking, as they probably do, a desire to aid in the enforcement of a law that may be in contravention to their own personal tastes.

"In the final analysis, then, the only honest bootlegger is one who has met all his obligations, including those to the government, and last but not least of these obligations is his income tax. The bootlegger who has safely delivered his stock, and who has been paid in cold cash, which he has either deposited in the bank or invested in securities or real estate to take care of the inevitable rainy day, has by no means crossed the River of Doubt. He has found that Uncle Sam is warring with a double-edged sword—on one side the prohibition officials and on the other the income tax investigators.

"Unless well advised by persons familiar with the income tax law, the bootlegger does not know that he can declare all his bootleg profits as such and be immune from any prosecution for illegal liquor sales by the government based on statements embodied in the income tax return. He can still make a clean breast of his business return if his income is being investigated by disclosing his profits to the revenue agent.

"Admissions made by bootlegging taxpayers to income tax agents and inspectors cannot be used as the basis of prosecution for violation of the Volstead act, nor will they be accepted as evidence in court, unless the bootlegger has been warned that any statements he makes will be used against him. The fact that he has declared his profits does not in any sense make him immune from such criminal prosecution, but all evidence must be from other sources.

"Likewise, if a bootlegger fails to make an income tax return, and his tax liability, together with the source of his income, is later discovered, any books or records he may have cannot be used or subpoenaed to prosecute him for violations of the liquor law. Neither can the examining officer offer as evidence in court any statements made to him by the defendant, unless warning had been given that anything he said would be used as evidence against him, although information obtained elsewhere in income tax investigations may be used as the basis for prosecution for violation of the Volstead act.

"Spotting the bootlegger is not the difficult task it may seem. Disgruntled former employees, and those who have been double-crossed in whiskey deals, together with the reports of prohibition agents, provide the income tax unit with sufficient information to keep a large crop of men constantly engaged in determining profits that have been made in the liquor trade."

Nice thing about winter is the screens are down so you can throw things out the windows.

Throw yourself away and you won't like the place you land.

Be careful about the bee in your bonnet. It is so liable to be considered a humbug.

Better start carrying out last winter's ashes before long.

We heard a young lady ask another to look and see if she had her bathing suit on.

Bathing suit censors are broadminded. One is always willing to see the girl's side.

Men are not polite. One will take a girl out and kiss her when she would lots rather have an ice cream soda.

Things could be worse. Some day they may be wanting permanent waves in their toothbrushes.

Sometimes a man doesn't know which side his bread is buttered on because there is none on either side.

Most important thing about returning from a fishing trip is deciding what to say you caught.

The Newest Version of the Green Hat Is of Long-nap, Felt in Veronese Green.

For your little autumn hat of felt velvet or velour, what color will you choose? There are still respondent hats of pansy or bishop purple of fuchsia, of commander blue, of shades of bois de rose. There will be new and interesting browns shown with the coming of autumn—and then there is green.

Don't imagine for a moment that Michael Arlen and his much-discussed character Iris Storm, have a monopoly on hats of this verdant hue. You may recall that not very long ago a British member of Parliament, Ellen Wilkinson, got her name in the first-page headlines of American newspapers, not because of any brilliant bit of debate, but because she appeared in her seat in Parliament wearing a green hat. Lady Astor had worn hats of more subdued color when she sat in Parliament. A conventional small hat of black seemed most appropriate. But Ellen Wilkinson's green hat was regarded quite favorably by other M. P.'s, whatever their political persuasion.

For a time a year or more ago the little felt hat of green was quite a favorite with young women here. But these hats were usually a rather light grayish green. The green hat of the moment, however, is a rich Veronese green, and it is made of velvet velour or some sort of long-nap felt.

Someone influential in the moulding fashion has spread the sentiment that the really well-dressed women will now wear a hat exactly to match her frock. Hats will no longer be as they have frequently been in the past, chosen in some contrasting shade. So the only time when you could wear your green hat would be when you wore a green frock, and to wear a green hat with a frock of neutral shade and to go about wearing a hat and frock all of green is quite another matter and something that some women would not care to do.

But perhaps it is better for women to follow the rule of wearing hats to match their frocks than to follow their own sweet fancy in the matter and wear hats as they list. Earlier in the season we saw women wearing fuchsia hats with henna-colored coats. The effect was atrocious. Later we saw these same fuchsia hats appearing with deep purple frocks—not very good, either! And now the latest folly committed in the name of fashion is to wear these deep purple frocks with hats of the new bright blue.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

THE ELUSIVE HANDBAG
To many men it seems quite ridiculous and inexcusable the way women mislay or lose their handbags. "If you always kept it in one place," they counsel, "you would know where to look for it." Or, "If you spent as much energy keeping track of your handbag as you do hunting it up after you have mislaid it, you would never have to look for it." Such comments of course, are quite safe, since men do not have to carry handbags and do not run the risk of being caught in the same fix.

Now some one has come forward with an invention that ought to do a great deal to help women out in this difficulty, and it is much more helpful to invent a device of this sort than to give good advice. The device is a bag made of some luminous material so that it glows in the dark and can therefore be found by its own radiance. These bags, which are of French origin, are sometimes made of black silk embroidered beautifully in fine white crystal beads. It is the beads that shine in dark places.

HOME-MADE SUNDAES

You can serve most delicious sundaes at home, if you wish to deviate a little from plain ice cream. One is fudge pecan sundae. Make hot chocolate sauce, cool it a little, then pour it over the individual portions of ice cream and add four pecan meats to each service.

Another is butterscotch sundae. For this, blanch almonds and brown them lightly in the oven six for each person. Then pour butterscotch sauce over each helping of vanilla ice cream and add the almonds.

Marshmallow sundae is made with chocolate ice cream, with marshmallow sauce poured over it, and then a little whipped cream added, sprinkled with grated bitter chocolate.

Where It Started

GAS MANTLES

The gas-mantle was invented in 1890, by Weisbach, an Austrian. His invention made gas-lighting many times more efficient, and threatened to offer serious competition to the then newly-invented electric light.

THE LIMITED MAIL

By ELMER E. VANCE
Novel by William Basil Courtney

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a pictorialization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Caroline Dale, who is in love with Bob Wilson, discovers that Jane, who claims to be Bob's wife, is now married to another. Bob had married her, the result of a cottage boy elopement episode, but the marriage was annulled. The Limited Mail and a runaway freight train have been in collision, and Wilson, the Limited's engineer, and little Bobby Foster have found refuge in the shack of Feltis, a tramp whom Wilson had known formerly.

The constant lightning made it easy for him to make out Bob's swinging figure, working down-hill toward the tracks, and Bobby followed as fast as his little legs could move. He began to have some doubts about his ability to overtake Daddy Bob, but he was determined to try.

Bob strode in moody, listless deliberateness toward the Gorge. The Old Witch's Nose loomed ominously above him, as it had on what other night of crisis. The Old Witch had been quiet for a long time now, and pronounced safe. It was probably by way of showing her contempt for the plane and the analyses of men, therefore, that she chose in this storm to vent in one grand, final fit of vicious temper the gnawing anger she had known through the years since the trains first began to rumble past in rupturing indifference to her hitherto sublime solitude.

Bob paused on the tracks, feeling an uncanny sensation of live, cold things crawling up and down inside his spine as he heard the great, devastating roar as the whole prospray and rain blinded and choked him. But he made the eastern sidel back and up to the track level. And, so there still remained a hard climb back and up to the track level. And, meanwhile, the Limited's whistle sounded near and clear above the elements.

He was thoroughly spent when he reached the tracks, and he collapsed involuntarily; then remained where he was, for a momentary respite, before starting to run down toward the Limited. The searchlight was not yet apparent; he had a brief margin of time.

Then a scream from across the shattered Gorge curdled the heart-blood he was trying to compose. Bob looked, aghast. There on the opposite wound of the trestle, outlined in the lightning, was Bobby. He had lost Bob's trail, except for the knowledge that he had proceeded along the tracks. He had followed these, searching—until he reached the broken edge. And just at that moment, when he had caught sight of Bob in the broken illumination of the lightning, had tripped on the sheet intended for the frightening of Bob. It was his scream in the dire and awful moments during which he struggled to regain his balance that had attracted Bob.

And even as Bob in horror looked on from the opposite cliff, Bobby's childish efforts to untangle and catch himself came to naught—and he toppled headlong into the raging whirlpools below.

For an instant that seemed like a century Bob was literally too paralyzed to stir hand or foot. His eyes were riveted on a towhead, light against the black waters as it was borne downstream. Then Bob came to life and stepped to the trestle edge to leap into the stream again, after Bobby.

A whistle long, wailing—carrying its proud demand for the safe passage of trainload of human souls. Bob paused almost in the very act of diving—a hundred or more lives rushing toward their death from behind him; one beloved little soul being swept away to death in front of him.

Which should he save?

He could only save one. Before he could flag the Limited and get back to the river, that little spot of brightness against the dark waters would be gone from his sight forever. Before he could overtake and swim back with Bobby, the Limited and its human freight would have plunged to an all-embracing death. It was the greatest decision in his life; the most terrible dilemma a fevered brain could imagine. Weakly he shrieked a cursed prayer that this Chalice might pass from him. But there was none to take it.

Which should he save?

Somewhat he made up his mind; somehow he got his trembling legs into motion and started down the track toward the flying Limited—in body, while his soul went out to die in the rapids with little Bobby. From then on, for many minutes; everything was black.

When next he drew a conscious breath it was to find himself on the ground in the light of the halted Limited, encircled by anxious faces, of which one stood out from all the rest in saintly significance.

"Caroline!"

"Bob—my darling!"

Bob did not know why she should be on her knees beside him, straining his head against her slender, trembling bosom, kissing him. He did not care why or how—he melted into the incredible miracle of it, and sobbed.

But his sobs of happiness gave way to an agonizing gasp, and he rose with swift unsteadiness to his feet, as he remembered. "Bobby," he choked, to Caroline, "Bobby's gone—into the Gorge. Bobby, my poor, dear little Bobby!"

A cry from some of the trainmen who had gone ahead to examine the full damage of the avalanche—a cry that caused the sympathetic group around Caroline and Bob to part and make way for two brakemen who staggered into the group, carrying Spike Nelson. And tightly clasped in Spike's one arm, was Bobby!

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Professional Sheik Captured by Police

(By Universal Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Hanz Heinz Maas, who claimed to be a prosperous civil engineer, was the proud possessor of four fiancées, until two of them discovered each other and spoiled his whole party.

Hanz showed technique in handling his ladies. Charmed by his good looks and winning presence, they were ever ready to help him out of his apparently numerous financial difficulties.

A few days ago this German Don Juan made a fatal error. He wrote two love letters and put them into wrong envelopes. Erna and Elsa happened to know each other and planned their revenge.

Elsa made an appointment with Hanz and together they met Erna. Before he had time to realize his situation they both gave him a few slaps in the face, one on the left and the other on the right cheek and at the same time called the police.

OUR PROUD REPUTATION

That the Purity Creamery of Richmond is one of the best conducted and most sanitary plants in the state was the opinion of speakers who sponsored the new milk ordinance before the city council at its meeting this week.

Dr. Blake and others spoke in high terms about the local creamery which is said to have passed all state inspections with high scores under the pure food act. It has always merited the very best reports, it was said.

NO—not the rouge that chemists make, but the natural, healthy glow that comes of wholesome living, nourishing food and lots of milk! Our pure, pasteurized milk will make the roses bloom in your cheeks.

"Thirty years of Service"

SEPTEMBER 9, 1895, our Folsom Power House at Folsom, California, the first hydro-electric plant of commercial importance in the United States, sent forth precious energy at 11,000 volts over 23 miles of lines that lighted streets and houses and provided motive power to operate the street cars at Sacramento.

This event marked the beginning of an era of expansion and development for the state. It was the motive for a great celebration on Admission Day at Sacramento.

Since that time progress has been rapid. Great plants have been constructed; thousands of miles of line have been built; an efficient organization has been perfected, providing light—heat and power to 2,200,000 people, until today, California leads in the production of hydro-electric energy and "Nowhere is power so cheap as in California."

In doing this for the people in the State, many problems were encountered; many failures occurred; fortunes, yes! even lives were sacrificed to give the customers the benefits they enjoy.

The policy of this company has been and will continue to be one of increasing its facilities in advance of the needs of the territory served.

It always has been and will continue to be the desire to aid in every way, the progress of this great growing commonwealth.

"The Street of Forgotten Men"
At California

mount. The story deals with a petty panhandler who adopts a little girl and brings her up in ignorance of his profession, only to see the one fine thing in his life threatened with ruin through the evil plotting of one of his fellow crooks!

George Kibbe Turner, who wrote the story for Liberty Magazine has created an unusual and exceptionally interesting character in Easy Money Charlie. Most of the dramatic action of the story is laid in a dive near the Bowery to which flock the hopeless, battered wrecks whom life has forgotten—a novel background against which Charlie and the girl stand out appealingly.

In such a role, Percy Marmont is in his element. Here he is seen as a beaten, hopeless wanderer, forced by circumstances into a life of petty crookedness which he had hoped to use in bettering the world in general. Then with dramatic suddenness, he becomes the guardian of a small girl. To bring her up like a lady, he is forced to remain in the surroundings he despises and to keep her in ignorance of his profession. When she reaches womanhood—he falls in love with her; but this, too, he is forced to conceal and, by shunning death, he leaves her free to marry a young man in her own sphere of life.

Featured with Marmont in the cast of the production, which will be the feature at the California Theatre today to remain for two days, are Neil Hamilton and Mary Brian.

Other features on the same program include Harry Langdon's latest comedy "Horace Greely, Jr.," "International News," Larry Canelo at the organ.

THIS IS WHAT HUNTLEY STOCKTON
OF GREENSBORO, S. C., SAYS ABOUT

What Is A Home?

"Webster defines home as 'One's abode or dwelling place; dwelling place of a man and his family.'"

"That is not a home in the modern sense of the word. Four walls and a place to sleep is not a home any more than a hotel is where we go to get ready to go somewhere else. That seems to be the modern conception of many people, but these people as a rule do not care to stay at home because their home is not attractive."

MAKE HOME ATTRACTIVE

"A home should be a place where all the family congregate in the evenings, a pleasant place to stay, attractive rugs and furnishings, easy access to books; in all, a place where the father and the children will WANT to rest after tasks of the day are done, and over all will be the spiritual and soul satisfying atmosphere that a real American home should have."

"A minister once wrote the writer that he could always tell a Christian home after one look at the living room. The right kind of a home should be neatly but not necessarily expensively furnished; there would be a big easy chair with a foot stool for father; mother would have a smaller chair, in which she did her sewing, a table with a reading lamp, where the children could study, which beside school and reference books contained a big family Bible. The other homes would be carelessly furnished, no comfort, nothing attractive, the furniture as lacking in character as the owners."

"The mayor of Raleigh recently made this statement: 'Many a woman can not understand why her husband wants to go to the club every night, but if she would investigate, she would find that the club has lots of easy chairs and sofas which are sadly lacking in her home. If the same comforts could be found at home the husband would rarely care to leave his cozy fireside to spend the evenings at the club.'"

HOME SHOULD BE SOCIAL CENTER

"What is true of husbands is also true of children. When the home is unattractive they are ashamed to have their friends visit them. They flock to some friend's house out of sight, doing you know not what. Are you raising YOUR children in YOUR house, or are they spending their time away from the Christian influences of the home in dance halls, questionable resorts or night joy riding, learning not the things they should know but the things they should not know."

"The coming generation is no worse than the past, but they are being almost forced into the streets, the dance halls and like places by their parents, who can afford an expensive auto but can not or will not spend anything to make the home cheerful or attractive for the young folks. Is it any wonder that the Great God Jazz captures so many of our youths when his condition exists? When the home is made a place to eat and sleep, a service station for the family, and is looked upon as necessary evil in present day life, the jazz habit, the tempting night life and the silver flask will continue to hold its own over the youth of the land, in spite of all the teachings of worried mothers and earnest ministers."

FURNISHINGS IMPORTANT TO HOME

"If you would avoid this evil condition make your home more attractive than the places with which you are competing for your child's respect, arrange comfortable chairs near convenient reading lamps for reading and study. Have a phonograph or radio so they can enjoy good music, urge them to invite their companions to visit them, arrange little parties for their friends and you will be surprised how in a short time they will actually want to stay at home instead of going out. And when they are near you can watch over them and see that they are kept away from all harmful influences."

"Make the home a pleasant place to stay and your children will soon be known as 'The boy who has such a dandy mother,' or 'The girl that gives such delightful parties,' instead of 'Jim the Sheik,' or 'Red hot mamma.'"

"Fathers and mothers, this serious matter is up to you. What are you going to do about it?"
